BUSINESS INTERRUPTION

What is Business Interruption Insurance?

If your business suffered an unexpected disruption, such as a fire, flood or storm or a major supplier closes because of one of these events, how long would it take to get up and running again? And how much would you lose along the way?

Business interruption insurance can help make sure your business keeps running smoothly after an unexpected event, by covering the turnover that is lost - so you can recover and rebuild.

Insurance can help your business get back on its feet if things go wrong. You can insure against disasters and for business disruption to cover your losses during the recovery period.

Who should consider it?

For most business owners, there are ongoing expenses that you need to pay even if you're not generating any revenue - like staff, wages, supplier invoices, rent or loan repayments.

Business interruption insurance can get you through a temporary crisis by protecting your cash flow - so you can pay these expenses and help ensure the future of your business.

Did you know?

$11B

It's estimated that natural disasters cost Australia $11 billion on average each year.
(Actuaries Institute, The Cost and funding of natural disasters in Australia - current position paper draft for discussion, 2016)

The top two risks to businesses around the world are extreme weather events and natural disasters

(Fortune, 'These Are the Biggest Risks for Businesses in 2018, According to the World Economic Forum', 2018)

While most companies insure their building and contents against disasters like fire, theft and storms, many neglect to insure for the interruption to their business caused by these events

(Australian Federation of Travel Agents "Do you have business interruption insurance?" 2018)

What can it cover?

Business interruption insurance can cover the loss of any sales you would have made while your business is out of action - plus any extra costs you incur to stay open.

Depending upon the policy, business interruption insurance can cover:

	TYPE OF COVER	POTENTIAL BENEFITS
	Revenue/Income	Income that would have been earned during the period the business cannot operate
	Fixed Costs	Operating expenses and other costs still being incurred by the property (based on historical costs)
	Temporary Relocation	The extra expenses for moving to, and operating from, a temporary location
	Extra Expenses	Reimbursement for reasonable expenses (beyond the fixed costs) that allow the business to continue operating while the property is being repaired
	Civil Authority Ingress / Egress	Government-mandated closure of business premises that directly causes loss of revenue such as street closures

What usually isn't covered?

Exclusions, the excess you need to pay and limits of liability can vary greatly depending on your insurer. In order to claim under a business interruption policy, the loss has to arise from damage to property (buildings, stock and contents) which was insured and the damage to property has to be claimable under that policy. Business interruption insurance is subject to the same exclusions as those in the policy covering buildings, stock and contents.

Case Study

Linda is the owner of a small office supplies business - with eight staff on the payroll and numerous suppliers.

Late one night, the restaurant next door catches fire and it spreads to her business premises – destroying the property along with the stock and IT systems. She's unable to open the shop for weeks while the building is being repaired. Because the business isn't operating, she's not making any money – meanwhile the bills are piling up.

With Business Interruption insurance, Linda can continue paying her staff their regular wages, so they keep their jobs, and rents a temporary location so the store can keep running.

Every business is different – which means you need a Business Interruption Insurance solution that is tailored for you. For more information, contact us today.
